

“Pro”fessors Needed!

Learning doesn’t stop at the age of 60 –
it’s a lifelong project!

Your enthusiasm and expertise is needed for a new academic experience exclusively for older adults.

We seek retired university/college faculty or other retired professionals willing to volunteer to teach one or two courses at a senior center. These are not the “popular” community ed offerings such as crafting and calligraphy, but we hope to bring stimulating courses ranging from astronomy to zoology, from bioinformatics to world religions, etc. through classes held weekly for 4-6 weeks.

Mature students are enthusiastic, willing to question and discuss, and attend because they want to learn. Some older people may not be comfortable in a “traditional academic setting” such as college filled with younger people preparing for employment, but still like intellectual stimulation, learning new things, and meeting new and interesting people.
